

Our Work

At Giving Mariams, our work centers around the powerful act of giving—directly and meaningfully. We collect in-kind donations by the truckload from generous partners, retailers, and community drives, and ensure those goods reach the people who need them most. Our mission is rooted in dignity, compassion, and the belief that access to basic essentials should never be out of reach for any family or individual.

We work closely with some of the world's largest and most trusted merchants to receive overstock, surplus, and gently used items. These donations include clothing, hygiene products, school supplies, household goods, toys, and much more. Instead of letting these items go to waste, we repurpose them into real relief for struggling families, individuals facing hardship, and communities in crisis.

Once donations are received, we sort, organize, and distribute them through local outreach events, partner organizations, and direct delivery to families. Every truckload represents hundreds of lives impacted—whether it's providing warm winter coats to children, personal care products to shelters, or basic household items to families rebuilding after hardship.

We are proud to serve as the bridge between abundance and need. By redirecting perfectly usable goods to those who can benefit from them, we're not only reducing waste but restoring hope. Our work brings relief and respect to recipients—offering help without judgment, and always with heart.

At Giving Mariams, we believe that giving isn't just about the items—it's about the message they carry: You matter. You are not alone. Every distribution is a testament to what's possible when communities come together with a shared purpose.

We update our impact numbers monthly to reflect how many families we've reached, and we are always expanding our network to serve more people, more often. We invite you to see the difference Giving Mariams is making—one truckload, one donation, one life at a time.
